THE DAILY NEWS.

VOL. II.

RALEIGH, N. C., SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 3 1873.

NO. 53.

THE MAY QUEEN.—In our notice yesterday of the occasion of the Baptist Sunday School of this city to Haywood, we were so pressed for space that our description of the crowning of the May Queen was very meagre. We now make a slight amend by giving the speeches of the participants in the ceremony.

Master Robert Williamson, the royal escort, in placing the crown upon the head of the lovely Queen, said:

"As twine we round thy beauties brow
These bright and fragrant flowers
May life, and peace, and bliss as now,
Crown all thy coming hours."

THE QUEEN'S REPLY.
"Thanks to you, my subjects all,
The subjects of a day,
Your queen is proud of reigning
Over minds so pure and gay.
Your love my friends, but shames me,
Alas! this undesired
And by its name I am told
My heart is high undervied;
But never, do believe me,
Shall I forget this day.
When kindly you receive me,
And make me Queen of May."

A little flower girl then approached, and placing a garland on the Queen, said:

"Bring flowers, bring garlands, bring seers,
Bring crown, and blessings and treasures Upon her, our Minnie,
The queen of our choice,
And render her homage
With loud ringing voice."

The sceptre bearer then came forward and presented this emblem of authority to Her Majesty, saying:

"Take, fair Queen, this sceptre now,
Which in my hand you see;
Which in my hand you see;
This sceptre, we give thee,
Rule us by thy love, thy love,
For by this we may be led,
May every blessing from above
Descend upon thy head."

To this address the Queen made the following gracious reply:

"To you, gentle friends, who this symbol Bestow,
Of my sway over your love-loving hours,
May peacefully glide, as you stream
Your life ever radiant with flowers."

A RUNAWAY.—Thursday evening an old slab-side, raw bone steer, drawing a two wheel cart, loaded with a bag of meal, two plows, a sack of salt, a midling of meat, a jug of sundries, (that's what we call 'em in our traveling expense account) and a drunken man came down Fayetteville street, and just opposite our office encountered the parade of the colored firemen, which was preceded by Stanley's Oak City Brass Band. We think the steer could have withstood the tooting and drumming, but the red shirted firemen and the fire engine was too much for him, and he concluded to back out of the approaching difficulty. His backward movement was decidedly quicker than his forward movement, and when the wheels of the cart struck one of Stronach's cotton bales, so sudden was the jar that the jug of sundries rolled out and was smashed to pieces. The sudden jar and "smash up" aroused the man from a semi-slumber, who vociferously shouted, "Whoa!" and with a strong pull, and a pull altogether, pulled the rope from the steer's horn. Thus unmanacled and closely pressed by the advancing red shirted firemen, the steer sought flight up Fayetteville street, in the direction from whence he came. The boys ran out and cheered; the excited dogs, who also joined in the chase, and the scene that ensued, decidedly the most amusing we ever witnessed, is beyond description. Above the din of the boys and dogs, the rattling of the cart and the music of the band, could be heard the whoa shouts of the half inebriated man as he clung with a death-like tenacity to his sack of salt in the cart. As the steer advanced, the number of boys and dogs increased. Where he stopped, (if he has yet) we have not learned.

MAJOR SEATON GALES.—The Wilmington Star, in its issue of Thursday, has the following concerning the address of this gentleman in that city:

"The address of Major Seaton Gales at the Opera House last night, the occasion being the Anniversary of the introduction of Odd-Fellowship in America, was largely attended, quite a number of ladies being among the audience. Major Gales fully sustained the very flattering reputation which had preceded him as a public speaker, and his remarks were listened to with every evidence of appreciation by those present. His address abounded in much useful information in reference to the Order, of the history and working of which he proved himself thoroughly conversant. He is a pleasant and agreeable speaker, and his address altogether was very entertaining, not only to the members of the Order, but to others."

Cape Fear Lodge is to be congratulated on being so fortunate as to secure the services of a gentleman so well qualified to fill the measure of their expectations on the interesting anniversary occasion which they last evening celebrated."

The Wilmington Journal says:

"Of the address any encomium of ours will be inadequate. We have heard nothing of its kind superior in its elements of oratorical power and success. All that an extensive research, and a complete rhetorical finish could impart of instructive thought and beautiful polished diction, fully established the value of this address. We feel, indeed, that without hyperbole, we may phrase our admiration by saying, it was 'a gem of purest ray serene.'"

WAKE FOREST COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.—The Commencement of this College takes place on the fourth of next month, and in point of interest will be surpassed by none of the past. Hon. A. F. Merrimon, of this city, will deliver the oration. The Alumni Address will be delivered by B. B. Folk, Esq., of Brownsville, Tenn. Rev. W. E. Hatcher, D. D., of Petersburg, Va., preaches the sermon to the graduating class.

The Board of County Commissioners met at the Poor House yesterday. No business of general importance was transacted.

"MARVEL NOT."—Since the time that Hugh Jones, of Warren county, sent Nuckles and Bragg, the champion marbleists of Old Shatter, to Petersburg to play a champion game with Virginia's best; (a full account of which we propose to give in a few days,) the game of marbles has ceased to excite the interest that characterized it previously to that time, at least, so we thought, but recent experience proves otherwise. Returning from Oxford Court last week, we halted for twenty minutes at Kittrells, Granville county, a station on the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad, for dinner. As we stepped off the train, we espied a large crowd of men and boys, women and girls of all ages, sizes, colors and nationalities, in short distance from the depot. Curiosity led us to the spot where we first encountered, an old gentleman in a plain, but somewhat ragged suit of homespun. "What's the excitement?" we asked. "The same old main," answered our man, who for the first time looked at us, and seeing we were a stranger proceeded to give a full history of the "main" as he termed it. From the interview, we obtained the following facts:

The main of marbles commenced at Kittrells on the 3rd day of March, and will end on the 3rd of June, just ninety days from its commencement. It is played by the champion player of Franklin vs. Granville's best man in that line. The rules laid down by Messrs. Nuckles & Bragg the champion players of their day at Old Shatter, in Warren county, are observed in the game, and the umpires are very rigid in enforcing a strict observance of said regulations.

So determined are they that at some times a stranger passing would think the Modocs had taken the country; though, the game goes lively on and attracts hundreds of idle spectators, (mostly colored), who are delighted with the skill of the players and amused at their enthusiasm. Money changes hands around the ring with the same freedom it would around a Spanish cock pit, but in sums ranging from one cent to twenty-five in some instances fifty cents has changed hands on the game, while much is staked on the final result. One darkey from Franklin has waged his whole crop of melons against a good 'possum dog, while another put up his steer and cart against an old shot gun.

It seemed to us a little singular to see two grown men—with coats off, sleeves rolled up, suspenders tied around their waists, their hands bound up with a red cotton handkerchief, eyes streaming fire and the perspiration running down their faces like rain from an old hill marbling for a championship. But so it is; in breathless silence these two champions play day in and day out, rain or shine. We looked on in perfect astonishment wondering how a parcel of grown men (not boys) could leave their homes and business and spend so much valuable time at nothing. But to satisfy us, we were told that this game was played to decide the championship between Granville and Franklin and the winner was to come in immediate possession of not only the champion's belt, but one hundred and twenty-six of the best agate marbles to be had in Petersburg. We will give result of the game and full particulars when it is ended.

TRINITY ITEMS.—Our Trinity College correspondent, under recent date, gives us the following items:

F. Milton Kennedy, D. D., of Macon, Ga., will preach the Annual Sermon to the graduating class on June 11th.

Prof. W. Deub, has accepted a Professorship in the Greensboro F. College. The Professor is one of the finest scholars in the South, and this institution will lose one of its ablest men.

Mr. Long, of Graham, preached an elegant sermon to a young men last Sunday. The sermon was very appropriate and much needed.

It is the universal desire of the young men, that Woodson should attend the Commencement, and then tell the ladies that we are all good and sober boys. This we cannot make them believe.

Trinity for the last week, has been infested with Insurance Agents.

The Rev. Bundy, of Richmond county, is building a fine residence, here. He intends making Trinity his home.

THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE (COLD) BUCKET COMPANY No. 1.—We are more than gratified to state that the exercises at the first Anniversary of the colored Bucket Company, which consisted principally of speaking, was a pleasant and enjoyable affair. We heard several of the addresses, both by members of the "Victor" and "Bucket," and from the general sentiment we are led to believe that the colored firemen are determined to push forward and onward in their organizations and render them selves more efficient and prompt. The Bucket is now one year old, have attended five fires and were first at four. They are a fine body of men, principally mechanics, are well officered and display an interest in their organization that will enable them to succeed. We wish them one hundred more anniversaries.

MAYOR'S COURT.—Before his Honor Mayor W. Whitaker, Friday May 24, 1873.

Henry Phillips and James Williams, arrested by Officer Dunston, were brought up for being drunk and disorderly on Wilmington street. Fined $3 each.

John Lee, arrested by Officer Roane for committing a nuisance in Metropolitan Hall, on the evening of the 1st of May, was fined to the full extent of the law—$5.

HYDROPHOBIA.—A dog attacked with the hydrophobia was killed yesterday near the Governor's Palace by Richard Lane, colored, and conveyed beyond the city limits. This is the first, and we hope the last case of this dangerous malady we will be called upon to report.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER TO MR. VICK.—The Wilmingtonians gave a complimentary dinner Thursday evening, at the Purcell House, to Mr. S. W. Vick, recently saved in the Atlantic disaster, which lasted until a late hour. The Wilmington papers say that the occasion was one of a most pleasant character, and numerous toasts were drank and responded to. Among others was one to "North Carolina," which was responded to by Major Seaton Gales, of this city. Says the Star:

"Major Seaton Gales, of Raleigh, was called upon to do the honors of this toast, which he did in the most handsome manner. The speech of Major Gales was one of the chastest, most beautiful and eloquent impromptu efforts to which we ever listened. He paid a noted tribute to a late son of Wilmington, of whose memory we are all proud, and mentioned in terms of high praise, the enterprise, the chivalry and the moral worth of the Cape Fear section, not forgetting in his fine encomium the city of Wilmington, which he proposed as a toast."

HURRAH FOR RANDOLPH!—J. C. Fuller, Esq., a prominent farmer of Randolph county, living 10 miles west of Ashboro, brought to the city yesterday five of the fattest and best beets that have graced the Raleigh market this season. He rode the fattest horse, wore the best clothing and we would like to say was the best looking man that has been in Raleigh for the past season, but our conscience won't permit the last assertion. At any rate, if he is a fair specimen of his county, then we say hurrah for Randolph!

The beets were bought by Mr. Crawford, and will be offered at his stand in the market this morning.

MAJOR BINGHAM'S LECTURE.—We regret that we could not get in a report of the excellent lecture of Major Bingham on the Anglo Saxon Race, owing to the lateness of the hour when it was concluded. Besides the pupils of the Peace Institute, quite a number of town people were out. The effort of Major Bingham was a crowning success, and all spoke of the lecture in the highest terms of praise.

HALF PARE.—We are authorized to say that only half fare will be required of delegates attending the State Council of the Friends of Temperance, which meets in Statesville next week.

Members of the State Medical Convention, and also applicants for license to practice medicine, will be passed over the several railroads at one fare for the round trip.

MEMORANDUM FOR SALE.—This paper is now offered for sale by its editor and proprietor, Prof. J. A. Harrell. Mr. Harrell is induced to take this step in order to accept an editorial position elsewhere. We hope the Tribune when it falls into other hands, may be conducted as successfully as under Professor Harrell's management.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—Rev. W. H. Bobbitt, Presiding Elder of Raleigh District, will preach at Edenton street Methodist Church at 11 o'clock to-day.

The same minister deliver a special sermon to the young members of the congregation at 11 o'clock on to-morrow (Sunday) morning.

COMMUTATION.—A petition is circulating in this city praying the Governor to commute the death sentence of Thomas Griffice and Simpson Mordecai to imprisonment for life. It will be remembered that these men are under sentence to be hanged on the 30th inst., for burglary on the premises of W. J. Hicks and deadlly assault.

NOON DISPATCHES.

Miscellaneous.
General Banks' mother is dead.

In Acton, Massachusetts a man mistook his wife for a horse thief and killed her.

The people of Maine hanged a man who killed two men sleeping in a lumber camp.

St. Louis night's mail from Saint Louis over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Road was burned. The baggage of the passengers was burned. The mail matter burned was from the extreme Southern States for Texas.

Dispatches deny the reports of the threatening conduct of Indians in Eastern Oregon and the southern portion of Washington territory.

The mining suit of Raymond & Ely, versus the Hercules Mining Company, involving immense interests in Nevada, has been tried before the United States Court at Pioche, and decided in favor of the Hercules Company. The case has been pending for ten months. Large sums were wagered on the result. The opposing lawyers have challenged each other. There was a free fight over the matter—three were wounded, one fatally. There is great excitement in San Francisco, where many brokers lose heavily by the verdict against Raymond & Ely.

Lava Bed News.
WASHINGTON, May 2.—A lava bed special says that all the troops have returned. Nothing has been heard of Lieutenant Cranston. The Modocs had a free dance. The Warm Spring Indians during the excitement of the fight were fired upon by the soldiers and compelled to retreat. The Modocs have the opinion that four men were found around the body of Lieutenant Wright and eleven around those of Maj. Thomas and Lieutenant Howe. There were thirty-five Modocs, which is supposed to be their full strength. They captured fourteen guns and about two thousand rounds of ammunition. There has been no movement against the Modocs for several days.

Kentucky Democratic State Convention.
FRANKFORT, Ky., May 2.—The Democratic State Convention nominated James W. Tate for State Treasurer.

Resolutions in favor of the preservation of State rights, a strict construction of the Constitution, a limitation of the powers of the general government, equalization of taxes, economical administration, subordination of the military to the civil authority and for protection for immigrants were adopted.

The resolutions invite the co-operation of all opposed to corruption and consolidation.

A Strike Partially Successful.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 2.—The threatened strike for ten hours is partially successful. There was some hoisting at those who remained at work, but no violence. The larger mill owners have adopted no concerted plan of action. Woollen manufacturers would like a general suspension of work. It is probable that cotton mills will shut down temporarily if there is trouble in getting help to run on the present basis. The difficulty is not generally regarded as serious by manufacturers.

Memphis Races.
MEMPHIS, May 2.—Frank Hampton won the first race; time 3:50. Quartermaster won the second; time 1:53 1/4. Jack Frost won the third; time 1:49 1/4.

Death of a Cardinal.
PARIS, May 2.—Cardinal Alexis Billiet, Archbishop of Chambrey, is dead.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.
New York Financial Market.
NEW YORK, May 2.—Wall street markets continue very dull. Gold has ruled lower than yesterday. All sales have been at 110 5/8 to 110 7/8. On gold loans the rates have increased 5 to 7 and 7. Gold per annum 1 and 1-32 per day for carrying. Foreign exchange is utterly demoralized. Nominal rates for sterling are 48 1/2 yesterday, but rates for business being 5 1/8 to 5 1/4 for 60 days, 9 1/4 for demand sterling. The money market is very stringent for call loans, brokers having paid 3 1/4 to 4 1/4 of one per cent. per day. The clearing house statement this morning shows violent changes, incident to preparations yesterday and the day before by the city and various corporations for the May interest payments. In addition to this material disturbance of the market, speculative manipulators have been resorted to, to advance rates. Mercantile paper is temporarily neglected. There is less gossip about banks, the last unfavorable rumors having been silenced by the clearing house Committee, who last evening examined the manufacturers and merchants bank. The distrust which has been created by the "panic mongers" has less foundation now than at any time for the year previous to the Atlantic Bank and Bull Head Bank suspensions. Government bonds are down with gold, but at the decline are strong. Southern State bonds were dull and firm at the board. The stock market was feverish early in the day, the greatest depression having been at the first board when C. O. and J. C. sold at 3 1/4 and W. P. at 2 1/2. After the board, the market became strong, and is so now. Telegraph has been exceptionally strong throughout. The other active stocks have been the Pacific mail, St. Paul, Lake Shore and the New York Central.

New York Affairs.
NEW YORK, May 2.—Two hundred troops left here yesterday for San Francisco.

A load of furniture worth $6,000 was stolen yesterday by robbers, who knocked the driver off the team, and threw a boy into the street. The owner caught one, but while waiting the arrival of a policeman, the other robber drove away with the team.

Spanish News.

MADRID, May 2.—A number of Carlist prisoners, confined on one of the Canary Islands, mutilated several days ago, and guard were compelled to fire on them to secure submission to the orders of the authorities. Many of the prisoners were killed.

A despatch from Barcelona says that General Vellarde has issued an order granting amnesty to all Carlists who surrender within eight days, except those who deserted from the Spanish army and the leaders, and requiring the inhabitants of Berge to pay ten thousand dollars for allowing the Carlists under Sabols to enter that town.

Bond, vs. the Third National Bank of Baltimore for the recovery of United States five hundred dollars amounting to twenty thousand dollars, and other bonds valued at six thousand and five hundred dollars, deposited as collateral security, the jury disagreed and were discharged, standing nine for plaintiff, and three for defendant. The above bonds were stolen from the Bank at the time of its robbery in August last.

From the Seat of the Modoc War.—No Movements for the Present.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—A despatch just received from Yreka, states that all the settlers on Bulte and Bogus Creeks have moved away. Batteries A. and K. of the 4th Artillery, have been consolidated, under the command of Lieutenant Leary, and Companies E. and G. of 12th Infantry, under the command of Lieutenant Camp. No active movements will be made against the Modocs at present.

Sailor Boarding House Keepers.—Illness of Thurlow Weed.
NEW YORK, May 2.—The sailor boarding-house keepers passed resolutions tantamount to a defiance of shipping commissioner here, and agreeing to furnish a crew to the ship North America, which has been waiting several days for them. They, however, state they are satisfied with the law, but not its application here.

Thurlow Weed is seriously ill.

Conflict Between the Legislative and Executive.

A late number of the Wilmington Journal thus refers to the damages sustained by the cold snap of last week: "We doubt if the memory of the 'cold-snap' of last week can furnish a parallel to this time last year. The trucks were doing a fine business, and every train that sped northward carried off large consignments of early garden produce to the northern markets. But this year it is different, and instead of money coming in, it is simply so much money going out—a dead loss to those who had calculated on a heavy spring crop."

AN APRIL SNOW STORM.

The Great Snow Hurricane in Nebraska—Cavalry Weather Bound—Thrilling Incidents Well Narrated.

Yankton (Neb.) letter in the New York World.

"On the morning of the 13th all was action. The Seventh cavalry, under Gustar, had arrived and were arranging their camp. Canvass tents were being pitched, the horses were picketed in rows, the laundresses and children were scolding shrilly and tumbling about gleefully in the scenes new to them. A mild wind was blowing from the west and southwest and a light rain falling. On the plains the tender green of the new grass could be seen here and there, sparse embryo of the brown and dusky herbage of last year, and flocks of summer birds flew and twittered intermittently. It was spring, rather wet and indubitably bleak, but spring nevertheless.

"The storm came on as suddenly as the great hurricane of January. The sky grew pale, then darkened to an ominous yellowish gray. The rain grew colder, then turned to sleet, then to snow, which fell lightly till noon. Then the wind strengthened and shifted from the northwest; half an hour later it was a hurricane, blowing from the north.

"As the wind grew stronger

THE AIR BECAME BLACK WITH SNOW.

"I say 'black' advisedly, for no other word will adequately express the impression left by that storm. The heavens were still a dome arched upon the receding ring of the horizon, but the canopy was no longer of steel blue and silver. It was a sky of lead, bounded, when one caught a glimpse of it, by a livid ring of fire. The snow no longer fell in flakes. The little needles, which at first had been driven tingling against the face and tingling against the glass, had given place to large, blotchy flakes, which were not too heavy to be driven furiously before the wind. But these, in turn, had yielded to such gigantic splashes of snow as may fall in the realm of Brobdingnag. They were irregular wreaths, patches, and aggregations of snow, which could be fairly likened to nothing so much as an atmosphere full of white bats and cotton wool. The prevailing impression was that of a mass of snow tumbled from the clouds upon the earth, not in cubic blocks, but in sheets of vast lineal area. It was this snow-fall which really blackened the air and covered the ground knee-deep.

"These great windings of snow were taken by the wind, which was blowing at the lowest estimate 70 miles an hour, sometimes attaining a velocity of 100 miles. Sometimes an undulating tremor would run through the falling avalanche, and the sheets of snow would flap and vibrate in the wind like sails or curtains.

"AT MIDDAY IT WAS AS DARK AS EGYPT.

"The few people who were caught out of doors groped and guessed their difficult way. The man who held out his hand could not see it at the length of his own arm. Buildings were invisible, and one ran against them, and looking up saw a gray shadow in the gray storm. The sun was powerless to disperse or lighten the Cimmeric gloom. When the storm lulled for a moment the shadows of the snow flakes could actually be seen on the white ground, seeming like a multitude of fragments of charred paper, or a whole forest's complement of withered leaves skimming upwards from the depths of the drifts to meet and to mate with the flakes that were scurrying downwards.

"Within the houses, after 1 o'clock, candles and lamps had to be lit to obtain light. People gathered around the tables and stoves, giving one idea of nothing so much as of a group of passengers during a storm in a steamer's saloon below the water line.

"One only consolation and mitigation there was in the storm. The snow-fall and wind were not attended by the intense cold which had marked the storm of January 8. Had it been so a death-roll wherein the names were written by hundreds.

"UNPARALLELED IN ALL WESTERN EXPERIENCE.

"The famous hurricane of 1856 did not exceed it in violence, nor was the storm of last January one third so severe in respect to the snow, though the cold then was more intense. Some idea may perhaps be formed of the heaviness of the snow-fall when it is stated that by 3 o'clock on the afternoon that storm set in the Missouri river was covered six or eight inches deep with snow and sleet, that fell so rapidly to melt, and formed a crackling and rustling surface as thick as sledge, for the mingling snow, water and sand, through which a foot-passenger trudges in the city after a thaw. Eye-witnesses say that a man in snow shoes could have crossed the river on this floating snow drift. This was, of course, an exaggeration, but not so much of an exaggeration as a city reader of limited experience would think it.

"It was not until the second morning after the storm in the city the violence abated. What a morning that was! That dawned! The sky was gray and clear, and the sun came out as if it had never known eclipse. There was just wind enough to raise ripples on the surface of the snow. The country and city had vanished. All was snow except the lotter buildings; they were snow drifts. Twenty and thirty feet deep the drifts prevailed in some places. Small

HOUSES AND STORES WERE BURIED AS COMPLETELY AS HERCULEANUM.

"Food was scarce under the snow. The sparrows on the ground, boots, and tobacco were the only articles on the menu, and of them there was a plentiful scarcity. To satisfy thirst there was snow, which was not long in increasing thirst till the torment was as intolerable as that caused by drinking sea-water.

"To reach the buried stores people had actually to sink shafts and scoop out tunnels to the doors, through and from which the dwellers scrambled, with difficulty to the top of the drifts like many prairie dogs to roofs of their mound-houses.

"FROZEN LIMBS WERE NUMEROUS, but fortunately none of the cases were fatal or excessively severe. When the sufferers at last were rescued the scenes were eminently affecting. From lying so long without a possibility of moving a limb the men were as so many cataleptics, paralyzed, stiff as so many tobacco signs, with arms and legs that seemed affected by as various and curious rigidities as those that beggars exhibit in the streets. They were haggard with anxiety and sleeplessness, and weak from fasting. The citizens dug them out, lifted them upon hand sleds, and drew them into town like so many corpses.

"Of the extent of the storm in this thinly settled neighborhood and its effects in so far as loss of life is concerned it will be impossible to say for weeks. All agree that such a storm was never before seen on the Missouri. General Gustar's long experience on the plains fails to record a hurricane of such violence. The railroad to Sioux City has been blocked up by impassable drifts, in which the two trains that left here and Sioux City on Sunday night are now stranded. Telegraphic communication even has been suspended. The agent at Vermilion reports that the southern limit of the storm was only a few hundred yards below that station, and was marked as clearly as the hand of man could have traced it by a boundary wall of snow. Along this invisible line wheeled the storm, leaving such a ridge as marks the tide upon the sea shore."

A MORTAL FAIRY.

ADAPTED FROM THE GERMAN OF HEINE.

The sea hath pearls of purest white,
The earth hath diamonds clear and bright,
Yet pearls shall darken, diamonds fade,
When vintaged near my little maid.

The sky her twinkling stars shall hide
Her orb shall turn as blood and red,
When radiant forth unto the night,
Shall trip this maiden pure and bright.

Can mortal be your little dear
And work such marvels on my sphere?
Yes, mortal! Still for me
Makes life a careless ecstasy.

We met! Her heart expansive grew Into a heart that through my life
Is portal. Now to enter, nothing Save death, the best, the wisest one!

Some further particulars of the late Disastrous Fight between the United States Troops and the Modocs.
Col. Green, in a dispatch from the Lava Beds under date of the 27th ult., at 5 p. m., gives the following interesting particulars of the late fight with the Modocs, which dispatch, being more explicit than the press dispatches already published, by us, we give extensively.

Some sixty or seventy one Modocs are armed with Spencer carbines and breach-loading muskets. In more than one instance a Modoc has been known to have two or more Spencer rifles, enabling him to keep up a rapid fire from his natural or artificial breastwork of rock.

The surface of the ground in many places is torn up by volcanic action which, from the fact that these are adaptable to purposes of hiding, or for points of defense. In several instances, soldiers knowing nothing of the topography, have come unawares on such fissures, and, before they could escape, were confronted by the wily Indian, with rifle leveled, and finger on trigger. Death, or at least a dangerous wound is the result. Too often the cowardly redskins escape by so many paths known only to themselves.

As a sample of their treachery and cunning may not be amiss, I will state that a portion of Batteries A and K, Fourth Artillery, and Company E, Twelfth Infantry, finding themselves in danger of being outflanked, took shelter in a hollow spot affording partial cover. No sooner had they done so than the Indians at this point, numbering twenty-one warriors, who knew and commanded every egress from the cavity, detached a party of their number on one side, fourteen remaining on the other, and then opened a cross fire on the poor fellows, who could not show either head or hand without certainly being struck. Very few escaped injury.
The rest were either killed or wounded.

It is impossible to ascertain the number of Modocs killed and wounded yesterday. "Capt. McKay reported that his Warm Spring Indians had taken four or five scalps. This may be the whole or it may be only a portion of the killed.
The Modocs are very careful to destroy,
as far as possible, all traces of their ca-suities, carrying their wounded into the caves, and burning the dead bodies.
Their wounded are supposed to be hidden in the caves, but few of them have been seen so far.

Justice to many of its gallant dead compels the record of the following well-authenticated facts: When Captain Thomas, of the 1st Cavalry, and his men, surrounded by his vindictive foe, true to his nature as a soldier, he sought to cheer the soldiers on to the bitter end, and obtain, if possible, life for life, and to sell their lives dearly, saying: "Men, we are surrounded; we must fight and die like men and soldiers."

In his noble efforts to sustain the courage of his small command, he was aided by Lieutenant Howe and Lieutenant Wright. After receiving a mortal wound, he lay on his back, with chain and armor, and his hands clasped in prayer, and his eyes fixed on the heaven, and set an example of bravery and determination to his men, uttering some such sentiments as those already quoted, not that it required such expressions to stimulate the men to deeds of bravery, when every man would willingly have followed either officer wherever they chose to lead. Yet they showed the mutual confidence existing between them. Since they were to fall, it is a pity it had not been when opposed to worthy foes. Yet it is a glorious example of the devotion of these brave soldiers to their country.

Of the men killed or wounded, it is permissible to say they showed their bravery with their blood, the former with their lives, the latter in total or partial disability.

NORTH CAROLINA ALMANAC, 1873.
(Calculated by Dr. Craven, and compiled by L. Branson, printed on fine-sized and calculated paper, neatly and elegantly.
It contains many useful recipes, much valuable statistical matter, and many items. It is emphatically an AGRICUL-TURAL ALMANAC. It is different from every other Almanac; has been published a number of years and sold successfully—it is, we think, certainly as good if not better than any other.
A few still on hand—order soon.
